The School of Sciences organized 1-day IPR training on the topic “Importance of IPR in Modern Global Economics.” The training was delivered by Dr. Aditi Mukherjee, Assistant Professor, Christ (Deemed to be University). She has started with the basic introduction to IPR and its importance to science students. The focus of the training was on Intellectual Property Rights (IPR), and specifically, it addressed their significance in the context of the modern global economy.

Intellectual Property Rights refer to legal rights that protect creations of the mind, such as inventions, literary works, designs, and symbols. Understanding the importance of IPR is crucial in today's global economy, as it affects trade, innovation, and economic growth. In summary, Dr. Aditi Mukherjee conducted a training session on the significance of Intellectual Property Rights in the context of the modern global economy. The training aimed to provide insights into the importance of IPR in various economic activities and how they impact innovation, trade, and economic development on a global scale.

Major Takeaways of the Session:

Participants have gained a clear understanding of what Intellectual Property Rights (IPR) encompass, including patents, trademarks, copyrights, trade secrets, and industrial designs. The training has highlighted how IPR encourages innovation by providing legal protection to inventors and creators. Participants have explored how IPR fosters economic growth by creating a favorable environment for businesses to invest in new ideas and technologies.

Feedback Analysis:

The participants took the session quite well. The session created awareness about the importance of IPR and how to apply for a patent. This workshop helped students gain knowledge that would be helpful to them lifelong, assisting them in building their courage and giving them a direction to success. The workshop was beneficial to attendees as the information departed during the session was priceless, coming from the experience and life lessons of the speaker. Students have requested more sessions on IPR in the future.
